A FEW FACTS WORTH REMEMBERING.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has proved a successful business for more than twenty years.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has its loyal source of Companies, and witnessed the rise and fall of more than forty Companies in the City of Philadelphia alone.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has returned more than its original capital to its Stockholders in dividends, and has never failed to pay its regular tax per cent. per annum, besides maintaining a reserve as ample as asking fund.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has managed its business with a less percentage of loss than any Stock Company in the United States.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has a Cash Capital of THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS, and Cash SURPLUS funds exceeding HALF A MILLION OF DOLLARS, or nearly Two Hundred per cent. SURPLUS, all safely invested in the most sterling securities.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has been under one management for more than twenty years, and writes only the best classes of property in moderate amounts.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has passed safely through all the great fires during twenty years, without impairing its capital, or weakening its resources.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has never had any connection with any Board of Underwriters, either local or national, but manages its own affairs in its own way, allowing others to do the same.

The Girard Fire Insurance Company has Agencies in most of the principal cities of the Union, and invites the CLOSEST SCRUTINY OF ITS CHARACTER, INVESTMENTS, AND PAST RECORD.

It is a recognized fact, that there is a certain class of safe property, owned by upright citizens, on which the percentage of loss is small; and, on such property, these Companies are ready to grant insurance on favorable terms. Parties known to their agents to be men of honor and integrity, owning first-class dwellings, brick stores, and merchandise, with equally good surroundings, if any, will find it to their advantage to call upon their agent, before insuring elsewhere.

ARCOSTOOK COUNTY.

THE FRENCH SETTLEMENTS.

The following is a continuation of the report of Governor Dingley's observations in Northern Aroostook, as published in the Lewiston Journal:

The tier of townships in Maine on the St. John from Fort Kent—and even several above—on the north and west, to Van Buren and even Hamlin Plantation south of Van Buren, on the northeasterly boundary of the State, including Cyr Plantation west of Van Buren, is settled by the French, who number about 8,000 persons on the American side of the river, and about an equal number on the New Brunswick side. They are the descendants of the French Acadians who settled soon after 1600 in Acadia, now Nova Scotia, and who were unjustly driven, in 1755, from their beautiful region by the English, after the country came into the British possession, on the plea that they had aided France in the wars between the two nations. These industrious and simple-minded people were their homes burned behind their eyes, and families separated and transported to various parts of the then British Provinces. Longfellow's Evangeline tells the story of the cruel separation of two families and two lovers. A number of these French refugees fled up the St. John to Fredericton, near which place they remained for several years. Soon after the close of the Revolutionary War, they were driven from this settlement by discharged English soldiers who claimed the land on which they had located. Following up the St. John, the refugees at last reached the beautiful intervales in the present town of Madawaska and there they settled.

THE MADAWASKA PIONEERS.

Their descendants, reinforced by other refugees and by French emigrants from Canada, formed a community by themselves, and cleared farms and settled their land before most of our towns were settled. They were Catholics in religion, and like their Normandy ancestors gave themselves implicitly to the guidance of their priests, who generally deserved the confidence bestowed upon them. Their wants were few, their tastes simple; and removed from the conflict of nations and principles, they lived contentedly where their fathers lived, died where they died. All their clothing was made by the busy matron, whose flock of sheep and loom are still seen in every part of the territory. New Brunswick simply knew that there was such a people a hundred miles above the edge of her settlements; and Maine, which claimed the territory occupied by the settlers, had only heard of their existence through its tithermen.

By the Ashburton treaty of 1842, the territory west and south of the St. John river from Hamlin plantation, seventy-five miles above, was assigned to Maine; and this all of the French settlers on that side of the river, probably not over four hundred at the time, were made citizens of this State. For many years little or nothing was done to educate or Americanize them. Vested as they were by the treaty with citizenship and the right of suffrage, the territory soon became the camping ground of unprincipled politicians who controlled the vote by means which were by no means calculated to improve the people. Within a few years, however, there has been a change for the better, and the use of liquor and money in elections has almost entirely ceased. At the last election the leading priest in the territory, Father Sweron, notified all concerned that if any party used liquor to influence votes, he, himself, would enter the canvass against the agents employing such measures.

THE MADAWASKA SCHOOLS.

The State has within a few years made great efforts to establish public schools in the territory in which the English language should be taught; not with increasing success. The people are by no means unintelligent as many suppose. Their cultivation, however, is after the models of provincial France. Until recently hardly any could converse in, or read or write English. Few of the French plantations had within their borders men who could make the necessary official returns in English; and it was by no means uncommon to find the returns of a dozen plantations made out and signed in the handwriting of some enterprising outside politician, who had on pay to wait till he learned how many votes were wanted, and then make out the returns accordingly. Now, however, all suspicion of wrong in this direction has passed away, and our said politicians are beginning to leave the people there to vote as they please. Public schools have been established all through the territory, which are fairly attended; and in all, the English language is largely taught. Hundreds of children are growing up who can read and write the English language, and who are gradually gaining some knowledge of our institutions. Many of these schools were visited and the scholars examined by Gov. Dingley and party on their recent visit. The great want, however, is teachers who can readily speak English as well as French, and who are at the same time familiar with American institutions. It is hoped that the high school at Frenchville will in due time supply the deficiency.

CONDITION OF THE FRENCH PEOPLE.

In other respects the condition of our French citizens in the Madawaska territory, was found much better than is generally supposed. Many of them—perhaps all the sons of the soil—are admirably educated, and furnish them with nearly all that their simple modes of living require. Their crops of buckwheat, oats, potatoes and flax, and their herds of cattle and flocks of sheep supply them with food and clothing. About half of the sheep are black, which fact takes away the point of the conundrum that inquires why white sheep eat more than black sheep. As a large proportion of the people have little of this world's goods, any general failure of crops like that experienced last year, causes much suffering. The characteristic light-heartedness and contentment of the race lead them to take much less care of to-morrow than Anglo Saxons are accustomed to practice.

Yet we doubt if there is a happier people, as gauged by the enjoyment of simple pleasures, to be found anywhere in the Madawaska territory. Dancing, music, games and holiday sports are as natural to them as water is to ducks. And such dancing! At Van Buren on the return, a party of French youths of both sexes—one of the aforesaid youth being the sprightly daughter of fifteen children—gave us a specimen of French reels and jigs in which the rapid and marvelous movements of the feet were the wonder of all who beheld. Large families are the rule. Ten children comprise a small flock; twelve and fifteen are common; and twenty-seven were mentioned in one case as the number of the large families of the territory. We have rarely seen better looking or better behaved boys and girls than here. In almost every instance when they meet a stranger they raise their hat or hand and respectfully bow. The same is true of the people generally. Would that we had a few of some of our other communities, could imitate the civility of the French people of Madawaska.

THEIR FARMS AND PROGRESS.

The settlements of this people are so strung upon the river that they dislike to leave the vicinity in which they were born and bred. Hence the constant tendency is to divide farms, until many of them have but a few rods in width on the river road, but run back a mile or two. The houses, made to some extent of hewn logs, but nearly always sawed and unpretending, are more thickly located for seventy-five miles up and down the river than in any other rural community in the state. The country for two miles back from the river is destitute of woods and has the appearance of long cultivation. Many of the people have, however, taken up lots further back from the river, in the forest, and there is now an urgent call for more land near by on which their children can settle. Unfortunately private proprietors own nearly all of the adjacent land, and many French people have already settled on these private lands and improved farms. This condition of things should receive the attention of the legislature.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

No careful observer can visit these people, now citizens of Maine, without having the opinion of them which he has received from history greatly modified to their advantage. They are not Yankees and never will be. They are frugal and general by industrious, but not so persistently active as Anglo-Saxons. Many of their best citizens, however, are equal in every respect—intelligence, energy and business capacity—to citizens in other parts of the State familiarly call "outsiders." As a people they are well behaved and peaceable, and rarely commit crimes requiring the attention of the officers of the law. Formerly they were much addicted to intemperate habits, but through the efforts of the priests there has been a great improvement in this respect within a few years—so much so that we saw no instance of intoxication in the territory,—and the sale of liquor has been driven almost entirely from the American side of the river. It will be very difficult—perhaps impossible—to make the English language the means of communication among the people. But by continuance of the present educational policy of the State towards this people, in due time a large portion of the next generation will be able to speak, write and read English as well as French; and will be indoctrinated in American ideas. We confess to a feeling of deep sympathy for this people, and great confidence in their future. And we are gratified to note the fact that they are every year coming to understand the rest of the State better, and to feel an increasing interest in their new civil relations.

While eating his breakfast, he complained of feeling unwell, pushed back his chair, fell upon the floor and in a few minutes breathed his last. His age, was about 72 years. THE OPPOSITION

Certainly the above is the only comprehensive phrase that can be applied to the forces now engaged throughout the country in contesting the supremacy of the Republican party. No name or title signifying any common standard of principles or policy can be properly used with reference to the inconsistent and conflicting factions which compose what is called for convenience sake the Democratic party. The vast number of Republicans throughout the country who have permitted apathy to aid the discomfiture of their party in important elections have reason to reflect seriously upon the incongruous political character of that "Opposition" which has been gaining ground of late, and to consider what would be the probable results of the full accession to power of a crowd with nothing in common but a desire to scramble for office. That hypercritical superintendent of American politics, the N. York World, which has so earnestly labored to undermine public confidence in the Republican party, has concluded, from an inspection of the results in Ohio and Indiana, that its programme may really be carried too far for present comfort and entire future security, and it now informs us that, after all, it is hardly safe to bring the so called Democracy back to control. The editor has apparently become convinced that even Republicanism guarantees some things which a highly critical writer is bound to respect, and that possibly the slashing functions of a public scold might prove less comfortable under the surveillance of a committee of White Leaguers. Many a time we now have the high authority of that journal for stating that —

The Democratic party is not a regularly organized opposition. It has no body of political doctrine, and no traditions and no leaders. It is a loose, incoherent mass of persons, scattered in greater or less numbers over the Union without any common creed or common aims and no hundred of them think alike or any two of national interest. Nobody can say what are their views about the currency, or the tariff, or the Southern problem, or the transportation problem or the civil service question or any other question. Some of them say one thing on all these topics, and some say another, the exact opposite.

We entirely coincide in the above opinion and so unreservedly agree with the critic editor's conclusion that "There is therefore, no successor for the Republican party ready." It is a pity that the gentleman did not find this out until after he had served to choose incoherent mass of persons" in electing candidates to a number of important public positions. The course of the World affords a fair illustration of that of a large number of newspapers and individuals, who work for disorganization until actual danger stares them in the face, and then cry out lustily for some one to take hold and avert the calamity of handing over the country to the tender mercies of hungry politicians "without any common creed or common aims." In fair weather, the journals which urge the importance of preserving Republican discipline as necessary to meet such emergencies, are patronizingly characterized as "cranks," but when the storm seems really to break, we generally find the critical parties shouting out lustily for the ranks to be closed up. The discovery now announced by the N. York World is no discovery at all to any one who has intelligently considered the attitude it pursues in this country during and since the war. Many of those who have been most pained by the errors and abuses incident to political supremacy, and who have been most prompt in seeking their reform, have not deemed it necessary to harp upon them so continually as to convince the public that nothing but evil existed. It was a true two years ago and one year ago to day, that the political interests of the country must suffer immeasurably by the accession to power of the elements opposed to the Republican party, and it was as true then as now that the ends of which corruption is made under Republican rule, are but trifles when weighed against the evils which would follow a nationalization of the "Opposition." Hence, it has been the duty of Republican leaders and newspapers, it would be the duty of the editor of any way, to no time their influence and keep the forces organized and animated in accordance with the importance of the issues involved. The present situation has its lessons for parties as well as for politicians, and it should impress upon the mind of the average citizen the necessity for looking beyond the petty details of politics, beyond the evils which can be cured without great difficulty, beyond the prejudices and misrepresentations of the hour, and recognizing the real alternatives of Republican administration, subject to the usual excuses of progress and reform, or the triumph of factions which would destroy the achievements of the past; while without a settled policy for the future.

A STRANGE THING. The laws of this State declare lotteries to be nuisances, and provide that any person concerned therein, by making, advertising or disposing of shares or certificates, by printing or circulating the same "or any advertisement or notice thereof, or by knowingly suffering the same to be published in any newspaper or periodical under his charge," shall be punished by fine not less than $400 nor more than $1,000, to be recovered by action for debt or indictment, in former case one-half of fine going to prosecutor, and in latter case to be further punished by imprisonment for thirty, sixty or ninety days, for first, second and third offences respectively. Notwithstanding this explicit prohibition by statute, many of the newspapers of the state are conspicuously parading the advertisements of various lottery schemes devised to entrap the unwary and weak-minded, and it is safe to say that vast sums of money are drawn out of the State annually in this way. We have been informed that the Kentucky lottery scheme at the last shuffle took over $6,000 from people in this city, and still it has been advertised here day after day in the most insidious manner. The bold defiance of law by outright advertising is bad enough, but our attention has been called to a peculiarly shameful expedient resorted to for the deception of the public, by the insertion in newspapers, under the guise of reading matter, of notices prepared by the lottery managers, and published at so much per line, which are craftily calculated to inspire confidence in the scheme, while arousing the cupidity of readers. The latest of these, which we find not only in the columns of the lowest class of papers, but also in some that claim a peculiar regard for morality and the public welfare; contains so gross an insult to the likes of which its publication is an open defiance, and so treacherous an indorsement of a scheme that has already drawn away enough of the hard earnings of diffusing people in this State, that we quote it as it has appeared to us in a number of our State exchanges. Let whoever may read the following or any similar notice understand that it is an advertisement, for which such newspapers as are willing to engage in that kind of business are paid by the lottery managers for inserting it. His deceptive guise:

☞ Governor Thomas H. Hyndman, manager of the G. S. Concerts in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, in Louisville ky that State, will do us a favor not to tempt us more with advertisements of that institution. The laws of the State forbid the publication of such advertisements, and do not discriminate between one of this kind, which is honest and for a good purpose, and whatever concerns. We know that some one will, on the 31st of November next, bag $250,000, and others smaller sums, and that the money will be promptly paid, as has been the case in the four preceding ones; but the law will not allow us to publish their advertisements. Keep them away from us.

CAPTURE OF NENA SAHIB. The Cable despatch announcing the capture of this notorious Mahratta chief will revive memories of the great Indian Revolt in 1858, in which Nena Sahib figured as the most ruthless of butchers. He was at the head of the Sepoy Rebellion, and conducted the terrible siege of Cawnpore, the surrender of which by the English was followed by a wholesale massacre. The survivors were promised a safe passage to Allahabad, but after embarking on the river, the ferocious chief ordered his men to open fire on them, killing some, while a few escaped, and then the remainder, numbering about four hundred, were brought on shore, the men instantly massacred and the women and children subjected to horrible tortures for eighteen days, when on Havelock's approach they were butchered with Scottish barbarities and their bodies thrown into a deep well. Many of our readers will remember the stirring incidents of the subsequent siege of Lucknow, which place was held by Havelock and Outram with a handful of men against Nena Sahib's army of 25,000 until relieved by the arrival of the British forces under Sir Colin Campbell. During the seventeen years that the chief of the Mahrattas has led the life of a hunted beast, he must have suffered enough from the fear of detection and of betrayal to have expiated any less hideous series of crimes than his. But no civilized people, and, least of all, the rulers of India, could afford to allow such a monster to go unwhipped of justice.

Is the Boston Traveller ashamed of Butler's appearance as one of Moulton's counsel? If not, why did it suppress the reference to him as such in printing that Associated Press despatch from New York?

The Syracuse Journal intimates that a serious conundrum is perplexing the New York Democracy, being no less than the question whether Tilden voted for Kernan, the Democratic candidate for Governor in 1872. If Tilden can't show a "straight" record for two years, Kernan's friends may seek revenge.

Brother Dingley will please accept the assurance of our appreciation of the manliness and courtesy which prompted the following editorial paragraph in the Lewiston Journal:

The Portland*Star* having accused the editor of THE BANGOR WHIG, of being practically "bought up" in the United States Senatorial matter, Brother Bonelle rests the case, denying that there is a particle of foundation for so flagrant an accusation, and by every one that he is under no obligations to, and has never been approached directly or indirectly by either candidate for that position, but on the contrary has been, and still is entirely free to take such a course as his own judgment of the public interests dictated. To those who are acquainted with Mr. Bonelle; of course no denial of such an unjust accusation is necessary. Certainly no one who may happen to disagree with the editor of THE WHIG in any question of public policy can have had any reason to doubt his sincerity or his entire independence.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL. The contract is completed for the erection of the building at Hallowell, designed for the State Industrial School for Girls. The contractors and builders were Messrs. Foster and Dutton—M. C. Foster of Waterville, and J. Dutton of Bethel—who have done their work thoroughly and conscientiously, and to the entire acceptance of a critical and observing committee. The building is of brick, containing three stories and a basement with slate roof and tower. It contains forty rooms, all of which are finished. The building is thoroughly plumbed throughout. The interior finish is in hard wood, white pine doors grained, and southern pine flooring. The walls are white and smooth, the plastering having been done with scrupulous fidelity. The furniture is being manufactured to be ready by the last of December.

Arrangements are not yet fully matured for the dedication of this school building, but it is expected that these interesting exercises will occur shortly after the assembling of the Legislature.

LIBEL SUIT WITHDRAWN. The Kennebec Journal has the following announcement of the withdrawal of Mr. Vose's libel suit:

It appears that Mr. C. C. Vose has discontinued his complaint against the proprietors of this journal for libel, having become convinced that no libel against him was intended. We are thus at liberty to say that we never had any desire or purpose to injure Mr. Vose, and that we do not understand the alleged libel to be applicable to him, as we believe him to be now a man of strictly temperate habits. We said at the time that Mr. Vose's complaint "was founded upon assumption," and that he was a "little hasty," and the result shows that those conclusions were right.

Advices from Rio Janeiro, the 15th inst., report that the small pox has almost entirely disappeared. Two smart shocks of earthquake were felt Oct 4th and 10th, but no damage was done. The agricultural prospects were improving. New coffee was coming into the market and fair prices were offered for shipment.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Now that obituaries of Carl Formes, the singer, have appeared in all the papers, it is stated that the death announced was that of a brother named Theodore.

The name of Mr. George Jones of the New York Times is mentioned in connection with the Mayoralty of New York. His exposure of the Tweed rascalities entitles him to some political recognition.

D. H. Chamberlain, Republican candidate for Governor of South Carolina, denies that he is the author of any of the acts for the increase of the State debt of South Carolina, or was consulted in regard to them.

Elliot C. Cowdin declines an invitation to be a candidate for Congress from the Twelfth New York District. He says there is Republican strength enough in the district to elect a Congressman, and he wants that strength united, rather than divided.

There is just one point which perplexes the World arithmetic man, and nearly drives him frantic every time that he attempts to cipher it out. There is no petting around the figures which show that it cost ten million dollars more to run the State of New York under Democratic than Republican rule, and the World man bathes his fevered brow in ice-water and locks himself in his room alone; but it is all in vain, he cannot account for it.

A little while ago we had Gov. Brown of Tennessee protesting because United States Marshals interfered with the execution of justice by the State authorities by making arrests, etc. Precisely what kind of justice the State authorities enforce we are allowed to learn from the fact that they have just released on bail the ruffians who murdered in cold blood Miss Julia Hayden, a young colored school teacher.

The White Leagues at Baton Rouge, La., know a thing or two concerning the manly art of whipping an election. They propose to do the counting of the votes themselves, and have passed the following:

Resolved, That on election night we pledge ourselves to be present at and assisting, according to law at the counting of the people's ballots, and if, as we doubt not, the people's candidates are to be denied to be elected, we solemnly call Almighty God to witness that Carnahan, in the presence and at the moment you will hear that they are counting his majority, will be shot dead from his (or their respective) offices, at twelve o'clock m. on any such.

APPEAL IN THE CASE OF PROF. SWING.
Oct. 24. The Presbyterian Synod
after a long discussion, voted, by a majority, to sustain the appeal of Prof.
of the Chicago Pres-
the young case. A committee brought in the following,
was adopted:
committee appointed to prepare a min-

Rev. Daniel Swing from the decision
Presbytery of Chicago, offer the following:
The synod sustains the appeal, and
reverses the action of the court below.
Second. The Synod finds both charges proved.
Third. The Synod believes that the proof of these charges would, under other circumstances require it to pronounce the sentence of suspension from the Gospel ministry on Rev. Dr. Swing, but in view of the fact that Mr. Swing has not appeared before the bar of this Synod, and has, in fact, declared himself to be an independent minister, the Synod refrains from pronounce the sentence, and dismiss the case by requesting the Presbytery of Chicago to erase his name from the roll.

THE AGENT.

BY P. P.

An agent's a thing
One often has bough
So what if I brag,
If would fain tell how
To the halls of earth,
That its powers within
Might burst into birth,
That its gifts unseen

And the autumn sun
With its burning hand
And once leaf grow a flame.
And each bough a brand
And a warm, red cup
And began to eat
Through the head, dry cup
To the sugar sweet

And the seeds thought,
I shall have one more
The life I have sought,
When I fall from the bough
For the storm passes through
Each vessel so slight,
That about me grow
And small the sight

And with sighing dew
And the sky's keen sound,
And the sun shy
Nestles on the ground,
But its germ is warm.

By the warm sunny teeth,
And the ground it won
What a grave it hath.
